

THORNWALL MULLALLY HAS VERBAL BATTLE ON WITNESS STAND WITH HENRY IN THE CALHOUN CASE

Resents Insinuations and Very Warmly Tells the Prosecutor His Opinion--Denied Going to the Mint With Tiley L. Ford.

SAN FRANCISCO May 12. Thornwall Mullally, assistant to the president of the United Railroads, called for the first time in the so-called graft trial in the Calhoon case this morning, enlivened the proceedings by a hot verbal set-to with Special Prosecutor Henry. It was shortly before noon that Mullally was placed on the stand and examined by Assistant District Attorney Oscar Special Prosecutor Henry took issue with him as to his answers and asked him if he did not know as a lawyer that he should not make such statements.

Mullally's Retort

"Mr. Henry, I think you would be very glad to hear the truth, and the official looking straight into the eyes of the prosecutor."

Mullally said something about the right of a witness whereupon Mullally retorted: "My rights have not been regarded or considered by you."

Mullally's testimony was important by showing conditions at the mint, but he denied all knowledge of the mint's actions of Tiley L. Ford.

Today's Session

SAN FRANCISCO May 12. With its major James D. Phelan a sensational examination concluded, and the interesting and important inquiry to be conducted when Rudolph Spreckels takes the stand yet to come, the trial of Patrick Calhoun resumed its usual even course this morning. Not only Spuds but Charles S. Wheeler and Tiley L. Ford were to be called to the witness stand.

For the first time in a month standing room only was the much-attended spectators' room, and a line of people stood for hours outside the courtroom during the afternoon, as king admitted.

E. P. Tog, he taking a sort of guardian position as regards Special Prosecutor Francis J. Henry, as he stood between the two big gents just at the rear of the attorney. Not only did he write notes almost every minute to the prosecutor, but he frequently spoke to him, and seemingly each time during his examination of witness.

It is impossible to tell whether or not Henry was to be called, but his action appears to indicate that the proposed proceedings and fitting pieces of paper have become tiresome to him. Indeed, it took no small space of time to tear up the missives after they all been read.

Henry was late to day, just fifteen minutes behind time, and Assistant District Attorney Oscar did not wish to proceed without him.

Parson's Report

Stanley Moore filled in the first half hour of the session by reading a portion of the Parson's report in aid to the Merchants Association.

The report favored the overhead trial, and spoke of the possibilities of preserving the health of the streets by preserving ornamental poles. It also noted such improvements as the court anticipated the reading of the document before it had been concluded. John Conner, insurance broker and former chairman of the street committee of the Board of Supervisors, was placed on the stand. His testimony was one of the various meetings between the committee and the officials of the United Railroads and detailed the offer made by Mr. Calhoun regarding the needs of the over-head trolley and conduit system.

This evidence was largely the same as that given by Phelan, the ex-Supervisor Rock.

Friendly Conferences

On cross-examination by Attorney Stanley Moore he described these conferences as very friendly and admitted that the company had no desire to do away with their power to regulate the corporation on the several lines during the rush hours.

He told of the summoning of Philip Parsons by the Merchants Association who had the idea that it might be necessary to have a sub jury in this city.

Henry, apprised of the inactivity developed during all the time that the company had been in ownership of property owners along Sutter Street, had complained about the "stinks old cable cars."

The witness avowed also that Oldfogger had objected to any old wires being allowed above the ground.

"He protested against anything that would hamper his plan of installing the new rail lines during the rush hours."

CITY'S GROWTH DEMANDS NEW POSTOFFICE BUILDING

Postmaster Paul Schafer's Plan Is to Erect Second Structure Like Present On the Adjoining Property.

The Oakland postoffice business has grown to such extraordinary proportions during the past three years, and continues to grow at such a rapid rate that Postmaster Paul Schafer represents that the doubling of the capacity of the present postoffice building has become an imperative necessity. The Chamber of Commerce has also become interested in the proposition of inducing the government to enlarge the building as desired in order to relieve the congestion, which affects every branch of trade and commerce, and has unanimously adopted a resolution to petition the Postmaster-General and the Secretary of the Treasury to secure an extension of the Federal property and the erection of a second building corresponding with the present postoffice structure in style of architecture as near as possible.

Postmaster Schafer's plans involve the purchase by the government of the land in the rear of the present postoffice lot, which covers an area of 180x150 feet and extends to Franklin street. With the acquisition of that tract, the enlarged postoffice building will have three street frontages, namely, on Broadway, Seventeenth and Franklin streets.

The upper floor of the present structure is occupied by the internal revenue, land office, custom house and other federal offices, and the money order department of the postoffice, which is a great inconvenience to the public generally.

Increase in Business

The field covered by the earlier definition now embraces Oakland, Alameda, and the heights and vicinity and the new is shown to extend to Piedmont, El Cerrito and the Berkeley hills, which will then embrace the whole of the territory lying between the Berkeley line and El Cerrito and the bay shore and the demands for space in the postoffice to house the mail will consequently be greater than ever. Senator George C. Perkins and Congressman J. R. Knowland have promised to represent the wants of the city at Washington and work for an immediate appropriation of the land required and the erection of the building.

HOMEOPATHS IN ANNUAL SESSION

Alamedans Are Elected to Office at Thirty-third Convention

SAN JOSE, May 13.—The thirty-third annual session of the State Homeopathic Society convened last night in the Venetian Hotel. Representative homeopaths of Alameda county, attending the convention, were elected to the office of A. K. Crawford and Dr. C. L. Tisdale.

Dr. Philip J. Watts of Sacramento, president of the society, opened the convention. The address of welcome was made by Dr. A. V. Schell, of the Chamber of Commerce.

During the convention banquets and receptions will be held.

TWENTY-FIVE CENT DUTY ON IRON ORE

WASHINGTON, May 13.—In the Senate this afternoon the committee amendment, making iron ore dutiable at 25 cents a ton, was adopted, 61 to 24.

WANTS HIS FREEDOM—Little C. Tainter began suit for divorce today in the Superior Court against L. S. Tainter, on the ground of intemperance. The couple were married in 1888 and have no children.

Members of the family accompanied the body to Cypress Hills Cemetery.

$3250 IN PRIZES GIVEN AWAY

DO YOU KNOW WHO THIS IS?

Cut out the above parts carefully and paste them neatly on a piece of white paper. Write under the picture the name of the person you think it represents.

In order to get the name of the H. HAUSCHILD MUSIC CO. more prominently before the public and to get more people acquainted with our line of high-grade Pianos, we, and the Piano factories we represent, will give away, absolutely free of charge, the following prizes:

- 1 Upright Grand Piano
- 1 Talking Machine Outfit
- 1 Violin Outfit
- 1 Gentlemen's Gold Watch

The prizes will be awarded according to the general neatness and merit of the answer. We will positively accept but one answer from each family, and the contest is open to everyone except employees of any music house.

Positively no answers will be accepted unless coming through the mail, and not later than 1 o'clock on the evening of May 14th, when the answers will be opened and inspected by the representatives of the newspaper, who will decide upon the winners.

You will be notified the following day if you are successful.

LOVE JOURNEY ENDS IN PRISON

Daughter of Railway Magnate Is Said to Be Girl in the Case

to a person by a private detective who was employed to watch the house for several weeks.

Samuels, who is prominent in legal affairs on this side of the bay, declares that these are only incidents which will be brought out at the proper time, and declares that if he decides to permit his client to reveal the story of the infatuation of the wife of a prominent real estate man of San Francisco, whom Vretman met while he was on his honeymoon, he will do so, as he has already introduced him into society on that side of the bay. Vretman will have little difficulty in proving himself from the girl whom he determined to marry.

"I cannot deny too strongly the wholly unfounded reports that the young woman (Miss Virginia Bogue), which have been printed in one or two of the papers, said Samuels, today. "There is no truth in the reports that Vretman and Vretman were interviewed at the 4th and 10th, and that he denied it before it was printed, 1-3-0.

"It is infamous to bring the name of a young woman, who is wholly innocent in this matter, and just now when Miss Bogue is attracting considerable attention as the Portola beauty, it is doubly despicable to bring her before the public in this false light."

Prisoner Denies It

Vretman, at the city prison this morning, likewise denied the story of his infatuation for Miss Bogue.

"I met the lady one night at the Fairmont, I can't say this morning. In the evening, I can't say. I have no connection with her father. In fact, I have never seen him, and I certainly never issued the statement that I intended even a passing regard for the lady."

The chief judge, who was present at the time Vretman was interviewed by a representative from the paper which printed the story together with an indictment drafted from Miss Bogue, affirms Vretman's assertion that he never gave any statement to the paper.

"When I am free again, I shall issue a true statement of all the facts to the public until that time except to deny the story of my friendship with Miss Bogue, I shall keep my own counsel."

Vretman, who is tall and blond with a prepossessing personality, displays the courtesy of good breeding and is, according to officials at the prison, a model prisoner, giving little trouble, merely asking to be left as much as possible to himself.

IN SAN FRANCISCO SOCIETY

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13.—Several of our society matrons and midwives visited the San Francisco Konzel Club yesterday afternoon to see that their interests were receiving the most careful attention. Among others were Mrs. George Murphy, Miss Louise Boyd, Miss Alexandra Hamilton, Mrs. Jessie Crocker and Miss Louise McCormick. Many of these darlings of the fair world are not allowed to remain over night at the general club. Their owners have the privilege of telling them a day or two on depositing a certain amount that will guarantee their being on hand early the next morning.

Mrs. Sterling Adam entertained delightfully yesterday at an informal bridge party. Among her guests were Mrs. Geo. Perkins, Mrs. Frank Randolph, Mrs. Geo. Gates, Mrs. Joseph Meyerstein, Mrs. Chas. Clem, Mrs. Genthimann and Mrs. Walter Benet. The President is now at its best, with its beautiful rose-covered cottages and shrubbery that tempt so many of the fair fairies.

Mrs. William Sandring has returned from the Presidio at Monterey, where she was the guest of Mayor and Mrs. George McIver.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Schonwasser and family have taken the Dulin bungalow in Rose for the summer.

FILE PLANS FOR $36,048 DEPOT FOR RAILWAY

Western Pacific Station to Be Erected at Third and Washington

BUILDING TO OCCUPY NEARLY ENTIRE BLOCK

Concrete Co. Files Bonds to Complete Structure in Ninety Days

The Western Pacific Railway Company has just filed plans for their new depot at Third and Washington streets.

The building is to cost $36,048, a greater sum than they are spending on the depot at the pier. The plans were drawn up by D. H. Burnham of San Francisco and the contract was awarded to the Bausano Concrete Company, who have put up a $900 bond to complete the structure within the prescribed ninety days.

It has caused great anxiety to property owners for some time to know where the new depot was going to be erected, for the railroad company has held options on property all along Third street on both sides of Broadway.

Now that it is settled that the depot will be located on the northeast corner of Third and Washington, the building is to occupy most of the block between Broadway and Washington.

The office of the Western Pacific is planned somewhat along the lines of the Southern Pacific depot on First and Broadway. Yet the plans call for a much handsomer and somewhat larger structure, which is to be of the most modern construction and to consist of three separate buildings.

POLICEMEN HAVE TO DIG UP FARE

Southern Pacific Adheres to Wright Law and Stars Are Ignored

The active enforcement of the Wright Law, which prohibits the giving of passed steam or street carways to anyone holding positions of public trust, is to be kept up here, as there were compiled to pay fare yesterday by the Southern Pacific Company. Some of the pols men were in full uniform and some were in citizens' clothes, and sat upon their star to earn them through.

Major Mott expects to have an opinion from the Attorney-General of the State in a few days and it is hoped that he can and policemen will have posted to them the privilege of riding free on the badge of authority supplied by the star.

UPHOLDS VALIDITY OF TWO INDICTMENTS

LOS ANGELES, May 13.—Judge Davis of the Superior Court today denied all motions interposed by attorneys for Thomas H. Broadhead, former chief of police, and Samuel Schenck, former police commissioner, attacking the validity of the indictments charging defendants with bribery.

Mrs. William Sandring has returned from the Presidio at Monterey, where she was the guest of Mayor and Mrs. George McIver.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Schonwasser and family have taken the Dulin bungalow in Rose for the summer.

EMINENT AUTHORITY TO BE IN OAKLAND

Gas Exposition By Oakland Merchants to Be Inaugurated Soon

Mrs. Jean Sinclair, a talented little Englishwoman, long associated with Lady Warwick in scientific philanthropic work in England and a graduate of the Normal School of Science, London, and the Pratt Institute, New York, will demonstrate the value of good cooking as an aid toward the creation of happy home life, through the efforts of the local gas company. Mrs. Sinclair will give a series of demonstrations of domestic science on several Tuesdays and Thursdays during the month of May. No admission will be charged and all ladies are invited to attend these interesting and instructive lectures as the guests of the Oakland Gas, Light and Heat Company.

Not only is the problem of good, healthy cooking made easy and simple by Mrs. Sinclair's system, but what is almost as important, in a country where the cost of cooking fuel has become almost prohibitive to the family finances, the theory and practice in the use of gas for cooking and its economy and convenience are plainly shown.

The making of dainty, attractive dishes, good taste in service and the training of successful cooks and servants has been the study of Mrs. Sinclair's busy life, and doubtless a thorough treatise will be given at her first lecture on May 18th, at 2:30 o'clock.

A corps of assistants from the San Francisco Association of Domestic Science will aid Mrs. Sinclair in serving afternoon tea.

The demonstrations will be held in the rooms of the gas exposition, Arcadia Block, Telegraph and Clay streets.

The merchants of Oakland will maintain an exhibit of modern gas appliances daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., May 18th to May 29th, and after 10 p.m. of gas free with every gas range sold.

MISS WELLENDORF IN WITNESS CHAIR

Contestant Causes Surprise By Calling Defendant to Stand

Miss Wellendorf told the jury that it was while Fletcher was ill in the St. Francis Hospital in San Francisco that the question of his making a will first came up. At the suggestion of Arthur T. Fletcher she broached the matter to Fletcher during one of her visits to him. He listened to her attentively, but dismissed the subject for the time, and nothing more was said about it.

Visits at Hospital

"While Mr. Fletcher was in St. Francis Hospital," said Miss Wellendorf, "I was with him a great deal at his own request. On a number of occasions the attorney of the hospital would not allow me because Mr. Fletcher was either sleeping or ill to be seen."

Attorney Countryman tried to make a great deal out of this refusal of visitors, but Miss Wellendorf refused to be confused about the real reasons which prevented her from seeing the sick man.

Miss Wellendorf testified that from the hospital Fletcher was removed to a residence which Arthur Fletcher had rented in California street. She said that when Fletcher was taken into the house, but one room was furnished.

Fletcher was installed in this unfurnished condition for a week after Fletcher occupied it, and then Arthur T. Fletcher established his wife and family there. In the interim Miss Wellendorf was in constant attendance upon Fletcher as his doctor would permit, and so was his brother.

Economical Man

Witness admitted that she had supplied some of the furniture with which Fletcher's room was furnished from her home in Berkeley, but said that this was done because the sick man refused to go to the expense of buying furniture and Arthur was not ready just then to install his own furniture. It was because of Fletcher's parsimony that he was removed from the hospital, Miss Wellendorf said in substance, and at his insistence he was a very economical man and was always worrying about expenses even to the extent of aggravating his illness.

Miss Wellendorf said that when she called on Fletcher they very seldom discussed his private affairs. She would read to him and talk about current affairs. Fletcher had a hobby—chicken ranches and breeding pigeons—and while he never owned a chicken ranch nor a flock of pigeons, he was always talking about them. The hobby was the subject of a great deal of conversation between them during these visits.

No Profit to Her

On cross-examination of Miss Wellendorf, the attorneys for proponents developed the fact that certain financial transactions between Fletcher and Miss Wellendorf, which had been the uppermost in the absent attorney's mind, had been fiduciary to her, whatever she may be of benefit to her whatever Fletcher may be of benefit to her. Attorneys for Fletcher produced showing that Fletcher had spent the money in question for himself and Mrs. Fletcher. Miss Wellendorf only acted as his agent in these transactions. It was also shown by receipts that during all of the time that Fletcher had his wife live with him, Miss Wellendorf in Berkeley, she only paid one-quarter of the household expenses, Fletcher paying the other three-quarters for himself, wife and a Japanese servant. Receipts covering these expenses invariably had been made to Fletcher.

"I don't know," began S. P. Davis, "that you really ought to try it. Mrs. G. C. Grote: "It's not a thing after one gets used to it. I have it in my mind that the Miss Wellendorf in Berkeley, she only paid one-quarter of the household expenses, Fletcher paying the other three-quarters for himself, wife and a Japanese servant. Receipts covering these expenses invariably had been made to Fletcher."

"So, when the answer, many would come to see you at a crowd," he will win, near here, with bloodhounds, the sheep's force.

George Gelcer Gives So Called "Good Government" Movement a Raking Over

BREAK UP THE TENNIS CLUB IS HIS PLEA

Reviews Political Situation and Urges United Action By Voters

BERKELEY, May 13.—The Political Discussion Society of Berkeley was organized last night at 1030 Dwight way, and the members immediately took up some of the important issues of the present campaign.

The following paper, written by George Gelcer, was read, and after a discussion it was agreed to by the club by a vote of 30 to 3:

"In these times when men hear stories told without an either with foundation, it should behove every citizen to think unselfishly and in the interest of Berkeley."

"Not from the standpoint that if he does not support this man or that he will be ostracized from certain society—that is un-American—we are free men."

"Not from the standpoint that one is under obligation to a certain person because loans, the money to buy large tracts of real estate or to build houses—we did away with slavery in the sixties."

"But rather we should vote for a man because of the man himself. Is he capable, honest and sincere? Has he ability, reliability, energy and ability? Does he represent any clique or secret political combine?"

"He who has ever served the city has done so properly?"

"These are some of the questions which should be asked."

A False Issue

"A short time ago a certain paper called the Good Government Advocate was sent to the voters of Berkeley. This paper was owned by the same persons who were president and secretary, respectively, of the Penns Club Machine."

"Here is a case of a political false issue into the campaign. For indeed it is true that if the cry for good government is raised, then it presupposes the fact that there was bad government—wicked administration in Berkeley affairs."

"If this is so, then the very element behind the so-called good government movement is to help to make the bad government worse."

"And again, if the present government is bad, it is an insult to W. B. McAllister, E. Q. Turner, Jesse V. Mendenhall, candidates for councilmen, as well as M. D. Hanscom, recently elected auditor, all of whom are a part of the present government."

Political Schemers

"The fact of the matter is, when political schemers fall in their schemes as a last resort, they try to make it appear that every person other than themselves is a supporter of bad government. While at the same time their own motives will not bear scrutiny."

"In this same 'Good Government Advocate' was written 'the danger that unless the members of the association of North and East Berkeley were drawn to good men in South and West Berkeley, those important sections of our city might find themselves unrepresented on the City Council and Board of Education.'

"Now, good citizens of South and West, especially and also East and North Berkeley, what do you think of that?"

"This assumes two things. First, that South and West Berkeley haven't sufficient ability to select their own men for office. They must be mighty badly off for want of brains. Yet Christian Holt was for twelve years a trustee and East or North Berkeley (more likely a couple of would-be politicians) didn't help out then."

"Second: The charter workers—'earnest charter workers' and the charter it self, as well as the father thereof, recognize no East, North, South or West."

Probably Laying Wires

"In fact, it was said during the charter election that if every officer was elected and all came from the same street in any part of Berkeley, it would make no difference."

"Still these same (?) 'Spirits of the Charter' men now declare that we apparently must have the same old line 'ward politics.'

"It is evident that they, whoever they may be, are the political wires for the county and state election two years hence. Beware of the big-lie or hypocrisy 'ne'er good government."

"Citizens of Berkeley, the honest man is the one who is honest with himself."

"Down with and bust the 'tunis machine'."

The meeting adjourned to meet next Monday night.

ESTIMATE OF SCHOOL EXPENSES IS LOWERED

ALAMEDA, May 13.—The local board of education has submitted its estimate of expenses for the fiscal year to City Clerk Browning. The sum is $3,500, which is the lowest estimate to be submitted by any of the large departments. It is $100 less than that submitted by the board of education last year.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Ex-President Roosevelt, in the current number of The Outlook, combats the statement credited to Count Leo Tolstoy that Bryan represented the party after peace in the presidential campaign. On this question he says:

U. C. CLASS OF '79
TO HOLD REUNION

Dr. and Mrs. George Pardee Plan Impromptu Entertainment to the "Old Boys"

Tonight Dr. and Mrs. George Pardee will entertain the members of the class of 1879 University of California, who are able to be present at their home on Eleventh street. This reunion is a friendly gathering, and requires no planning. No special program is ever planned, and everything happens spontaneously. The entertainment enjoyed. It is expected that the guests of this evening will number about sixty. Old school day reunions make a most interesting feature of the yearly gathering. Almost every year a new recruit is discovered and a splendid time is enjoyed hearing what their former classmate had accomplished since their former university days.

One of the largest real estate deals for some months was made this week by A. J. Snyder, the prominent real estate man, who consummated the sale of a section of the Dr. E. H. Woolsey lot, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets, and Jackson and Madison streets, comprising 7 x 60.34 feet, fronting on the west side of Madison street, involving a consideration of $40,000.

The seller was R. J. Favert and the buyer Mrs. Minerva J. Sweeney. This is a large deal and reflects great credit on the management of A. J. Snyder.

THINKERS DODGE CHURCH, HE SAYS

Rector Amazes Hearers by Attack on Sunday School
Lessons

BOSTON, May 13.—The Episcopal congress, in session in Tremont Temple, was galvanized by a sensational onslaught on the Christian opinions of the church yesterday by the Rev. Samuel McConnell, pastor of All Souls, New York. Dr. McConnell made his striking allegation when he said: "The Alleged Incompatibility of Gnosticism and Orthodoxy" was under discussion.

"The pews now in use in hundreds of our Sunday schools tell the children lies," said Dr. McConnell. "They present myths or legends as realities. They give descriptive measurements of a temple, such as never was, and a tavern such as never could be, by the crown of cherries on the grape day."

Miss Best is well known as a teacher at the boy's school, and should she be made queen of the carnival, her subjects will be legion.

Estudillo Avenue will be the center of the festivities on the day of the cherry festival and will be transformed from the staid but beautiful thoroughfare it is now to a veritable May Day pageant.

The elaborate preparations being made for the event by the various committees, and the enthusiasm being displayed throughout the county, indicate that the cherry carnival in San Leandro will be an event long to be remembered.

1000 CHILDREN TO BE GUESTS OF ALAMEDA

ALAMEDA, May 13.—Professor G. Melching, professor of manual training in the schools of San Francisco, has said that he will bring 1000 children from San Francisco to Alameda on Saturday, for the entertainment to be given at the Alameda Fair.

The Chamber of Commerce has asked the Southern Pacific Company for a special train to meet the children at the mode and convey them to the Park-street depot on the north side.

NEW LIBRARY TO OPEN ON FRIDAY

Dedication Services Will Be Held at San Leandro Tomorrow Afternoon

SAN LEANDRO, May 13.—The new public library, which has just been completed at this place, will be dedicated to the township with impressive services Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Eliza Eastman will preside as marshal of the day and the services will open with a parade of school children and members of societies and fraternal organizations. Charles Dawson will read the introductory address and Colonel John P. Irish has been asked to speak.

After the dedication by the Rev. J. E. Anderson, Rev. W. G. O'Malley and the Rev. S. M. Woodward, A. A. Rogers, one of the directors of the institution will turn the keys over to the board of trustees and Major J. J. Gill will deliver a response.

An elaborate musical program, in which the school children will take part, has been arranged and at the conclusion a reception will be held in the newly opened library room.

Miss May Johnson is to be librarian and on the board of trustees are A. A. Roscoe, president; Dr. C. H. Miller, secretary; Mrs. F. H. Garcia, A. B. Cary and O. T. Lynch.

Husband With Cruelty

Superior Judge Harris has granted an interlocutory decree of divorce to Henrietta Trouin from George Trouin for extreme cruelty. According to Mrs. Trouin, her husband was so insanely jealous of her little boy by a former wife with whom he was in addition to his wife lived with him. He would knock her down and take money away from her when she needed it, she says, to buy food, and insist on her working to support him and keep him in whisky money.

Houses were sacked and then burned, families were driven off and small parties of horsemen rode through the country "cleaving up the Armenians." ### General Bingham Likely to Head Secret Service

THEODOOR A. BINGHAM.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The report that General Theodore Bingham, who is at present on the board of policy communications, will succeed John E. White as chief of the United States Secret Service, which has been gathering ground in political circles for the past few weeks, now seems almost a certainty.

General Bingham during his service in the army belonged to the engineer corps. His promotion occurred in 1891, when he was raised to the rank of major. He entered the service from West Point in 1878 as second lieutenant of engineers.

The degree of A. M. was subsequently conferred upon him by Yale University, and, having concluded his studies, he agreed to become a civilian in San Luis Obispo, Calif., where he was immediately appointed to the engineering corps of the U. S. Cavalry.

He was promoted to captain in 1891, and, having been married in San Luis Obispo, he was promoted to major in 1894.

Older in the Role of Outlaw.

Fremont Older whines over the verdict acquitting Luther Brown, saying it has made him an outlaw in San Francisco. In a certain sense he is, but the aspect that Older gives the matter is ridiculous. The verdict simply proves that Older is not the law in San Francisco, and that his attempt to use the machinery of criminal administration to wreak his personal revenge and punish those who dare to invoke the law against him has been signally rebuked. It is a vindication of both law and justice, and a condemnation of efforts to use the machinery of justice as a burglarious implement to defeat the process and purpose of the law.

Older's methods of conducting a newspaper and the means he adopted to evade being called to account in the courts are calculated to create the impression that editors and publishers of newspapers are beyond the reach of the law and outside its pale, and that assassination is the only redress for wrongs they are accused of inflicting. He printed a base libel on Brown, knowing it to be false. He did this because he believed he could do so with impunity under conditions as they then existed in San Francisco, and then he tried by a gross perversion of the law to send Brown to State's prison for having him arrested for prosecution in another county. At any other time and under any other conditions the charge of kidnaping would have been laughed out of court, it was so narrowly technical and so evidently manufactured to fit the occasion. It was a device by which the injured party was put in peril of his liberty, while the man who had wronged him was given the dual role of prosecutor and injured innocent. Having procured Brown's indictment at the hands of a Grand Jury that will go down in history as the pliant tool of private vengeance more than eighteen months ago, Older has never since ceased to defame and vilify him in the columns of the Bulletin. Now that a jury has declared the kidnaping charge baseless and Older's story of his experience unworthy of belief, the Bulletin editor sets up a pathetic wail that he is outlawed by a judgment of court, and that anybody is given the right to kill him. Jack the Giant Killer cuts a sorry figure blubbering like a calf because a jury has had the common sense and independence to declare that it is not a criminal offense to have him arrested.

When James D. Phelan stood up in an Alameda church and declared that the publisher of THE TRIBUNE ought to be shot down on his own doorstep the Bulletin applauded the incitement and defense of assassination. He sings in a different key now. Yet he is only humbugging. The question before the jury in the Brown case was whether the crime of kidnaping had been committed. That Older had violated the law was undeniable; that he was arrested in conformity with law on a warrant issued as the statute directs by regularly constituted authority was indisputable. The charge of kidnaping was based upon the assertion that the arresting officers denied Older's request to be taken before Judge Cook. If Older had been taken to Los Angeles he would have been dealt with in accordance with law, promptly admitted to bail and permitted to fight his case in the courts. But being part and parcel of the system of administering justice by private dispensation he fumed that his arrest was an outrage, a criminal enterprise to get him out of the way. So the law was prostituted that Older might be permitted to pose as a martyr in the struggle for civic reform. Black Bart would make as imposing a figure as a civic purist. Ancient Pistol in the stocks presented equally as pathetic an example of martyrdom.

Russia's Triumph in Harbin.

Russian diplomacy has evidently triumphed in the contention with China over the administration of the affairs of Harbin. Under the Portsmouth treaty of peace, both Russia and Japan agreed to the military evacuation of Manchuria, retaining only a sufficient number of troops to police the railroad. The Russian armies were to be withdrawn north of the Amoor river, the old boundary line between Manchuria and Siberia. Russia also agreed to restore to the Chinese government the civil control of all towns and settlements wherein she had assumed such authority. Russia was slow in withdrawing her armies and in transferring civil authority to China. But she was fertile in furnishing excuses for the delay. All military and civil jurisdiction by her over Manchurian territory was finally surrendered as far north as Harbin, the military base of supplies which she had built at the junction of the railroads leading to Port Arthur and Vladivostock. When urged to evacuate Harbin, the Russian government always made plausible excuses to the Peking government for further delay, meantime taking a firmer grip on the control of the city's affairs. Chinese acceptance of these excuses was construed as an evidence of weakness. Finally, the Russian authorities took the bold step of levying a tax on the Chinese merchants located in Harbin, forcing them out of business when they refused to pay.

The levying of this tax was interpreted at Peking as a violation of the agreement to surrender the control of the civil affairs of the city, in common with all other towns and districts in Manchuria, where the Russians had usurped civil control, and a vigorous protest was entered by China and representations were made to Russia also by other governments interested in the fulfillment of the terms of the treaty of Portsmouth. Russia's excuse was then that the tax was levied on the Chinese merchants to cover their share of the cost of the military protection of the railroad. But in response to the protest the Russian embargo placed on the merchants was removed and they were permitted to resume business. The agreement just reached between the two governments acknowledges China's sovereignty over Harbin, but it provides for a joint administration of its municipal affairs. In other words, Russia has played the same hand that she has held in all of her encroachments on Asiatic territory with the exception of success. Having obtained semi-control in the civil administration of Harbin's affairs Russia will now bide her time to assume the whole control when the opportunity to do so without fear of international opposition presents itself.

While in New York William J. Burns told a Sun reporter a few things about the graft prosecution in San Francisco, a bonanza the whole Burns family are working as a rich lead. Among other things, he confided to the reporter this interesting bit of information:

"I see that since I left San Francisco they have been trying to scare Rudolph Spreckels out of the case by framing up a blackmailing plot on him. You'd think they would know Mr. Spreckels fairly well by this time, but apparently they don't. He's in this affair to stay. He's not the kind that quits."

The two scoundrels who tried to blackmail Spreckels will be surprised to learn that they were trying to scare him out of the graft cases, and the San Francisco police will be astounded to learn that the silly Black Hand imitators were agents of the higher-ups. The blackmailers could probably have got the $2000 along with immunity from prosecution if they had only had wit enough to say they had been hired by Calhoun's people to give Spreckels a fright. But the immunity graft has been rather overworked and is getting too raw for the public stomach.

British Tax on Urban Land.

The British House of Lords has three times turned down an act to levy a direct tax on land as a means of increasing the revenue. The opposition of the Lords to such a proposition is due to the fact that it is made up chiefly of the largest landowners in the United Kingdom and the tax, if levied, would fall directly upon them.

The Liberal ministry in power must, however, have revenue to save the government from facing a deficit. Nearly every source, except land, whence revenue can be derived is paying all the tribute it can bear. The middle and lower classes are taxed to the limit. To relieve distress among the wage-earners of the country an old-age pension fund has been created which makes a big drain on the revenues. The income tax has been raised to the danger line. The moral and industrial population of the kingdom is being ground fine between the upper and the nether millstones. There is practically nothing left as a new source of revenue except the urban lands where the great wealth of the nation is centered and from which the members of the British aristocracy draw their enormous annual revenues.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George, who is one of the most brilliant young publicists the times have produced, is a wonderfully resourceful man. He has now conceived a plan to defeat the opposition of the Lords to a direct land tax through a special act by including a tax of one penny on the pound sterling on the valuation of urban lands in the annual budget over which the Lords have virtually no control, as the Commons has supreme authority over the raising of the revenues for the maintenance of the government. This urban land tax in the budget meets the demand of the Conservative leaders for a larger navy, which has been undoubtedly raised to embarrass the government, and the extra demand on the revenues created by the old-age pension act. The House of Lords is furious, for the urban land tax must be paid chiefly by its members. To illustrate: The great bulk of the wealth of the Duke of Westminster, the richest man in the kingdom, lies in the West End, the most valuable as well as the most aristocratic part of the British metropolis. The Commons will pass the budget undoubtedly with a big majority. The Lords will not dare turn it down and become responsible for the stopping of the wheels of the government.

Lloyd George's liberal ideas of governmental policies has given him the reputation of being tainted with Socialism; but it is, after all, that kind of Socialism which is equitable and benevolent in its character. It breaks down class barriers in the imposts as well as in the disbursements of the revenues which the mass of the British people recognize and heartily approve as just and proper.

Seventh-Street Electrolier Lighting.

By unanimous vote the Council has decided to illuminate Jefferson and Harrison parks with electrolies when the Seventh-street Improvement Club carries out its plan of lighting that thoroughfare with similar lamps. The two parks in question are located on the line of Seventh street and it is quite proper that they should be provided with the same means of lighting for the sake of preserving uniformity in the system.

The illumination of the main business streets with electrolies is a great improvement on any system of street lighting previously adopted. The electrolie lamps are attractive street ornaments in the day time, and the brilliant light which they shed at night adds immensely to the value for business purposes of the property fronting on the thoroughfares where they have been installed.

Seventh street is destined to be wholly devoted to retail business in time. A goodly proportion of it is thus occupied at present. When the thoroughfare is illuminated, as the Seventh-street Improvement Club has planned it shall be, the gaps now existing in the lines of retail stores will be filled in, and when the steam railroad now operated on it is converted into an electric railway in all probability it will become one of the most popular retail business streets in Oakland. And lighting with electrolies the two parks flanking the street will certainly enhance their charms in the eyes of the public.

It will occur to a good many that pointing to the exorbitant profits retailers are alleged to make is not a conclusive argument in favor of the high tariff on glass. It is surprising to learn that middlemen derive from 200 to 600 per cent in passing glass on from the manufacturer to the consumer, but that is a matter quite independent of the tariff question. American glass manufacturers should be given adequate protection, but no more than that. Still there ought to be some way of protecting consumers from such excessive profits as the middlemen are said to be making on glass. But perhaps the whole case has not been presented. We have heard only one side of the story, and that from an interested party.

ABANDONED YEAR AFTER WEDDING, SHE CLAIMS

Alleging that her husband wilfully deserted and abandoned her a year after their marriage in Los Angeles, in December, 1907, Mrs. Pearl G. Stoops has brought suit in the Superior Court for a divorce from Luther Stoops. She says that she commonly known in Oakland as Pearl Garnett James, and asks the court to restore it to her. She also wants $50 a month from Stoops as alimony, and prays the court to compel him to pay the fee of her attorney and bear the other costs of the suit.

PORTER IS ARRESTED, CHARGED WITH MAYHEM

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13.—Nick Morelli, a porter, was arrested at 6 o'clock this morning by Policemen Hehan and Higley, and charged with mayhem. He was accused by Antonio Spinetti, a messenger boy of 407 Broadway, of having bitten off a piece of his right cheek.

The lad was treated at the drug store at Pacific and Kearny streets. He claims he got into a fight with Morelli in the latter's rooms at 104 Kearny street.

NOTE &amp; EXCERPT

second Irishman, "of all things in the world I'd rather see two men—John L. Sullivan or the Pope; but, if I have to take a choice I'd rather see Sullivan, because they only make a Sullivan once in awhile and they make Popes all the time." Cardinal Gibbons was greatly amused at this and expressed approval of the "manly art" of the delighted pugilist.

When Mark Hanna came to Washington as the new Napoleon of Republican politics there was some doubt as to how he, as a successful and somewhat arrogant man of business, would accept the rubbings which the Gridiron Club would be disposed to give him, says a Washington letter in the Boston Transcript. He instantly fell in with the organization and until the day of his death practically never missed a Gridiron dinner. A famous quodlibet, by his own request, sang at his funeral. J. P. Morgan is another man for whom a special dinner was planned on the occasion of his first visit. The leading act of the evening represented a New York broker's office in which the sign over the door read "Boosters & Busters." In the dialogue Mr. Morgan himself was invariably referred to as the old man. Some discussion turned to a question as to who should be the next President, and after several New Yorkers had inquired "president of what?" expressing their doubt as to whether there was any such officer to be selected, one of them asked who was President now, to which the rookney who affected to hold Mr. Morgan's interests in his keeping replied: "I don't know what his name is, but I know it is somebody who is not wholly satisfactory to the old man"—an allusion which pleased Mr. Roosevelt, who was present, quite as much as Mr. Morgan himself.

THREATENED SUICIDE DOES NOT WORRY WOMAN

Mrs. Moore Declares Daughter Not Concerned in Hamilton's Life or Death

GUARDS WATCH IN CELL OF ACCUSED EMBEZZLER

Women Flood Jail With Letters Which Sheriff Promptly Holds Up

"Whether General Hamilton sees it to end his life or not does not concern my daughter in any way," stated Mrs. Bessie Moore at her home this morning in response to a printed telegram from Seattle, announcing that a heavy guard had been placed in the cell of the former state official, who, arrested for embezzling $50,000 from the militia fund, threatens to commit suicide.

Longing in the United States, where he is awaiting trial for embezzlement of state funds, and with what is believed to be the cold-blooded assertion of the man that the woman in whom he is infatuated has failed him, the wife of the accused is threatening to commit suicide.

Whether General Hamilton sees it to end his life or not does not concern my daughter in any way," stated Mrs. Bessie Moore at her home this morning in response to a printed telegram from Seattle, announcing that a heavy guard had been placed in the cell of the former state official, who, arrested for embezzling $50,000 from the militia fund, threatens to commit suicide.

Eager for Mail

Though he desires that he does not credit Mrs. Moore's statement that she still expects favors and money advanced to him, that if any bond between them is to be broken it is his desire to end it, a guard who appears to feel keenly the dependence of the Moore women, and who eagerly awaits the arrival of his mail, evidently in the hope that some word from her will be forthcoming.

Meantime the fat Mrs. Moore is busy in her home in this city, refusing to be interviewed and plotting her next breakaway with a switch to the back of the mobster who has been placed upon her.

Letters From Women

One woman, whose husband is confined in prison, is supplying the usual quota of mail to women with demands for the shield. Truly it is evident with a question of permission to interview him. Her friends, who have never met him, are anxious to know if he is a man of honor.

Miss Price, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace C. Price, an old-established First Oakland family, is a very attractive and a commanding girl of the blonde type of beauty and has a large circle of sincere friends. She has a pleasing personality and is of very fair physique.

Mr. Price, her father, is a Southern by birth and although of the same name is not closely related. He has not been in Oakland very long but will probably make his future home here. Although no definite date has been announced for the wedding it will probably be in event of September 1.

Mr. Price's home, which is one of the many built last year, is elegantly decorated with pink roses and hyacinths combined with cattleya ferns. At the conclusion of the gaudy ceremony supper was served to the young hostess was showered with congratulations and with flowers.

Mr. Hazel Hartman and Mrs. Sterling Price were awarded the prizes for the afternoon.
